

We would like to share our experiences with Dr. Robson.

Our 7 year old daughter was still wetting at night time, which was becoming quite a problem for her. We had tried everything ourselves, with regards to solving the problem, but neither a positive nor a negative approach seemed to have any effect. Eventually we took our daughter to our family physician, who then referred us to Dr. Robson.

Dr. Robson impressed us from the moment we met him. He was very positive and confident that we could solve this problem within a reasonable time, and started our daughter on his "training program" right away. And sure enough, very soon things started to improve. Within about 8 months, our daughter was dry at night, and she has been ever since!

Apart from the obviously excellent "medical program" that Dr. Robson offered, we were also very impressed by his personal approach. Although our daughter was only 7 when we saw Dr. Robson, he would always treat her with the utmost respect; during visits he would talk to her personally (and not about her to us!) as well as talking to us as parents. He always had a very positive and encouraging attitude, and would always be very proud of her improvements, and I am sure that that contributed to my daughter having the confidence and the willpower to beat her problem after having tried unsuccessfully for such a long time.

We all felt wonderful when she finally was completely and constantly dry at night, and we feel a great deal of gratitude and respect for Dr. Robson. Even now we sometimes refer to him in daily life, when our daughter encounters a problem that requires practice, dedication and willpower, and this has never had a negative effect!

We have already recommended Dr. Robson to some of our friends, as we have found out that night time bed wetting is a far more common problem than we initially thought, (and therefore far less embarrassing than we felt it was) and that we clearly weren't the only ones struggling with this issue.

Therefore we feel that Dr. Robson deserves all the accolades that come his way!

From a very happy and dry young lady and her family.
